COMPUTING WORKSHOP
BILL MCARTHUR

Day and Time: Wednesdays 6-7 PM in the clubhouse, starting January 5, 2011

Goals: to introduce and discuss some popular computing topics such as social networking (FaceBook, Twitter), blogging, email, photo albums on the Internet, and other items of interest to the participants.

Brief Bio: Bill has been programming and using computers since 1964. He bought his first personal computer (Radio Shack TRS80) in 1978 and has bought dozens since then. Bill has taken computer courses at Villanova, Penn State, Duke, and Carnegie-Mellon over the years. He taught computer courses for almost 30 years at Shippensburg University (PA) and Stockton College (NJ). He was a computer consultant for over 25 years. The Internet has become his memory, as he will illustrate.

Questionnaire: if you are interested in attending, please give me some information that will help with planning topics for our sessions. Please fill out and turn in to the office.

1. Do you have computers in your household? If so, please indicate what kind and whether they are Windows or Mac computers.

2. If you do not have a computer, what is the most important thing keeping you from owning one?

3. If you are a computer user, what is your level of expertise? (novice, semi-literate, literate, fluent)

4. What are you most interested in learning more about with respect to computers and computing?
